WASHINGTON NEWS GLUTTED BY FLAMES

The "Washington News" of Centerville, was burned out today in a fire this noon. Althought the floor was not injured, the entire roof and superstructure of the building went, and great damage to paper, type and machinery resulted from fire, water and chemicals.

The fire department was at the Chamber of Commerce dinner when the fire signal was given at 12:20. Immediately they rushed to the scene, and by prompt action saved part of the building, and the surrouding ones.

Just how much damage was done has not yet been determined by the Editor, Miles Smith. It will not be until the debris is cleared away that an accurate inventory can be made.

The fire is thought to have started from a defective flue. Although it had not been burning long, the rapidity with which a wooden biulding burns explains the damage.

San Mateo-Mt. Eden Bridge Is Main Topic Chamber Commerce

The most important thing discussed at the regular Chamber of Commerce meeting last Tuesday was the completion of the San Mateo-Mt. Eden bridge, and the effect it would have on Niles, and sorrounding country.

Lester Duffy brought up the subject, and told that the completion of the bridge had been assured.

Lester Duffy brought up the matter of the completion of the San Mateo-Mt. Eden Bridge across the bay, whose completion has been garanteed by the Board of Engineers at their recent meeting, for February. Mr. Duffy wanted to know why Niles and the township wasn't doing something to draw traffic to Niles. The tunnel at one end of town, the grade crossing at the other, and the narrow perilious subway to Niles canyon all act as trade barriers. Confronted by these hazards, traffic will naturally choose the Mayhew road instead.

Mr. Kirk, however, raised the question, why should traffic come through Niles? It is out of the way from the Bridge, involving an extra haul of some 16 miles for trucks.

Mr. Duffy replied that the grades in Niles canyon were easier than in Dublin, granting that the road was properly improved, and that he thought that improvements should be made.

However, it was pointed out that the difficulty of a left-hand turn to Niles canyon, straight in the face of traffic would still remain, and that trucking and commercial firms would hesitate to use it as a regular route. There the matter rested.

The discussion veered to the poor state of safety devices in the roads of this region, of which both tunnels are part. There should be a red-flex signal at one tunnel, and the canyon still remains the greatest menace in the community, since cars leaving it come out blindly on a main thoroughfare. Another difficulty is the lack of boulevard stop signs on side streets leading into the state highway.

In order to secure them, the co-operation of the township would be necessary. In the cities, signs are provided for by city ordinance, but rural unincorporated communities lack the power to do anything, except by petition.

George E. Donovan rose, and moved that the Chamber go on record as desiring boulevard stop signs, and send a petition to the Supervisors to that effect. Also, he accepted the invitation of E. B. Hodges, to attend the Centerville Chamber of Commerce meeting today, where he put the matter before that group.

There was also a letter from Wichita, Kansas, enclosing a questionaire on this region, which Harvey Braun turned over to F. V. Jones, secretary-pro tem to answer. Just who in Wichita wants the information is vague, since there is no business head to the letter, but it is signed M. A. Houston.

The slide program that was supposed to have been given by Fleishman's Yeast Company failed to mature, through some inadverance, but will be held in the near future. The Chamber desires a large attendance at that meeting.

DOMESTIC DUCK ABLY PREPARED BY DOMESTIC CLASS FOR TRUSTEE DINNER

A domestic duck dinner served by a domestic science class was the feature of the evening when Mr. Fred F. Dusterberry, Mr. F. V. Jones and A. A. Bettencourt acted as hosts to the Board of Trustees and principal of Washington Union High school.

The domestic science class, under the direction of Mrs. Gertrude Morris, took charge of the dinner, and according to the report of Fred F. Dusterberry, it was a good one, with not only duck, but all the fixings.

The class also has an exhibit of preserves in the office, that looks very tempting.

WESTERN PACIFIC DEPOT TO BE MOVED

ASSOCIATION TO GIVE BIG PROGRAM AT NILES LIBRARY

Purpose to Rouse Public Interest, Stimulate Enjoyment

An out-of-town speaker, special music by the school glee clubs and a quartet from the school band, with a stry for the children by Mrs. Roland Bendel are among the features announced for the open meeting of the Library Association to be held at the Niles Library, Wednesday evening, October 17, at 8 o'clock. There are no charges and the public is codially invited to be present.

It is hoped by those interested in the library that these meetings will be the means of furthering the use and benefits of the beautiful plant which it is Niles' good fortune to posseess and all persons, young and old are interested in worthwhile entertainment and instructive recreation will make an effort to be present of the 17th.

WALSH TALKS TO COMMERCE BODY AT CENTERVILLE

Jimmy Walsh, former Deputy District Attorney will talk on "Photostatic Copies of Records," at the Centerville Chamber of Commerce meeting this week. He claims that by inserting the words, "or photographs" into the State law that deals with copies of records, thousands of dollars for the State can be saved in the cost of duplicate records, since the original can be photographed, and all the rest printed from that negative. The method would also insure complete accuracy.

Country Club Plans For New Building

At the regular meeting of the Country Club the question as to whether to remodel the club, or buy and build a new one was discussed. No definite action was taken, but a committee with Mrs. Roland Bendle as chairman, Mrs. George Coit and Mrs. H. F. Chadbourne, was appointed.

Mrs. A. A. Turner, of Hayward, discussed all the pending elections in her speech, after which Elizabeth Shinn furnished a piano solo.

AGITATION IN REGISTER RESPONSIBLE FOR EARLY ACTION BY RAILROAD

"It was the Register articles that caused us to send a man to investigate the depot situation in Niles," said Eugene Fox, Vice-President of the Western Pacific, and traffic manager, in an interview with Norman H. Parks, recently.

He expressed himself as willing and determined to see that the situation was corrected. However, like most cautious railroad men, he refused to commit himself as to the exact time. At present, the company is waiting for the State Commission to pass on their application to extend the road to San Joaquin valley, and bridge the bay.

The decision of the commission need not necessarily be favorable, for the Niles situation to be remedied, but the company wants to dispose of the matter before turning its attention to anything else.

In concluding the interview, Mr. Fox thanked Mr. Parks, not only for his interest in the good of the town, but also for the company as well,,and promised anew that he would endeavor to give Niles a depot if not in the town, at least within walking distance.

OLIVIA PHELPS DIES SUDDENLY IN SEATTLE, AS RESULT OF BURNS

Olivia Phelps died last Sunday in Seattle, Washington, according to notices received by Mrs. Jim Grey from Mrs. M. E. Whiting of Seattle.

Miss Phelps' death came as a shock to her friends. Although it was known that she had been severely burned about the hands, arms and neck two weeks ago, she was fully expected to recover by the Hospital. Mrs. Gray was planning to go there Monday, to help care for her friend, and take charge of an Apartment house which Miss Phelps was to run for University students, when the wire came announcing her death.

Miss Phelps is well known locally, and was reporter on the Register under George McArthur. She was an old newspaper woman, who had worked on the Chicago Tribune 17 years ago. A stroke of paralysis deprived her almost entirely of the use of one side of her body. Nevertheless, she forced herself to move around as much as possible, and did wonders to conquer her handicap.

GIRL ATTACKED WHILE WASHING IN OWN BACK YARD

Cecilia Andre, 17-year-old Alvarado girl, was attacked in her own back-yard last Monday morning by a Japanese, M. Shokichi, probably of San Francisco. Miss Andre was running the washing machine, when he came up behind her, and without any warning, put his hands around her throat. She screamed and struggled. The sounds brought her father to the scene. He grappled with the man, and conquered him.

He then called in Constable Bernardo, who took the man to jail. He was foaming at the mouth, and utterly hysterical—laughing, sobbing and muttering incoherently in Japanese, and the only information he could give was his name.

The prisoner was turned over to the sheriff for observation, and an insanity complaint was issued.

Child Welfare Party To Be Big Affair

The benefit card party to be given by the Welfare Board, for the child welfare home of southern Alameda county, is scheduled for Saturday evening, October 13, at 8:00 at the Country Club, in Centerville.

All funds raised will be used to renovate the old Tyson home, which was recently purchased, in an effort to have it ready for use as soon as possible. There are children waiting now for place in the Welfare home.

At no time will it hold more than six children, but because no child may stay there longer than six months, there will be a steady stream of children benefited.

The card party will probably draw a large and representative attendance, not only from the township but the county as well.

Elks Give Dance Card Party to Crowd of 90

Elks Association of Washington Township gave a dance and card party to 90 members and friends at the Country Club in Centerville on Saturday night. The committee consisted of Harvey Braun, A. Alves, L. Solon, Robert Blacow and William Helm. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

St. Mary's Orphanage Fine Model of Efficiency

ST. MARY of the Palms, the orphanage for girls at Mission San Jose, takes care of 180 girls between the ages of three to sixteen, in every phase of their lives. The school is a world in itself. The children's daily, religious and general education and recreation all have to be planned and supervised by the Dominican Sisters who run the school.

Far more than a kind heart is necessary in such an institution. Practical details of management, and initiative in confronting unexpected situations are imperative. When, a few years ago, a new dormitory became necessary, the Sisters had the old town hall moved bodily to the school grounds, renovated it, and made two dormitories, housing 120 children.

Again, when engineers installed a projection machine, one of the sisters learned to operate it quite as a matter of course, although she does not care for movies herself.

For the past three years, the school has had a dentist come up to the school once a week, instead of transporting the children.

"It wasted so much time to take the children in," said Sister Marcolina, the charming and gracious guide who shows visitors over the school, "that we installed our own instruments and chair."

The large-scale household operations necessary in an institution of this kind demand careful thought, and good equipment. The laundry is the equal of most public laundries, with washing, wringing and drying machines There is never a bit of laundry hung out; all are dried and mangled automatically.

LET US KNOW THE TRUTH.

IF THE CALAVERAS dam is unsafe, let us know about it. Not only us, but San Francisco and the state. Secrecy in a matter of this kind is hardly short of criminal. Gum-shoeing around is cowardly, and without justification.

If the dam is found to be safe, after exhaustive investigation, no damage is done by the publicity attending and preceding the findings of competent engineers.

If it appears that the impounded water menaces the life and property of Niles and this territory, then, it is a pertinent matter for this paper to discuss and give the widest publicity of which it is capable.

The writer has been told that an appeal has been made to the state engineer to either quiet or substantiate the rumors that a great danger is constantly menacing those living in the territory beneath this Spring Valley reservoir and that he has written that no authority is vested in his office over privately owned dams. We believe there is a misunderstanding somewhere. When the lives and property of citizens are jeapordized by any concern, public or private, or by any individual, however high or low his station, certainly it is the duty of the government to intervene—IN TIME!

That the state is not clothed with legal power to protect life and treasure, is ridiculous on the face, and if such a specious plea is made, then it is the subterfuge of an official lacking a proper understanding and apreciation of his obligation, to those who, temporarily, have clothed him with the dignity of official power.

On this Calaveras dam matter, let us have light, not darkness. It is not a metter to be whispered in star-chamber conferences, but shouted from the housetops that the warning may be sounded, and the evil, if there, corrected.

The Register demands of the state engineering department that it pass judgment in this matter, that a great apprehension now felt by some may be lifed, or if found grounded in fact, corrected before another disaster similar to that of the St. Francis, shocks the state and nation with its awful toll of death and destruction.

A PERMANENT DESGN SOUGHT

Students at the Pleasanton High School are all worked up over selecting a design for school pins and rings. They want something that will be permanent from year to year, and the committee headed by Jack Ballene feels its responsibility not only to its contemporaries, but to all the generations to come. They have half a dozen designs under consideration, and expect to chose soon.

GAS MAINS EXTENDED TO IRVINGTON BY P. G. & E.

Further extension of gas mains in Southern Alameda County has been approved by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to serve Irvington and adjacent territory, providing ninety consumers will make application for service.

Announcement of approval of this extension was made today by L. H. Newbert, division manager of the company, who states:

"The plans call for the laying of 13,000 feet of 4-inch, and 11,500 feet of 2-inch high pressure gas main in roads leading to and from Irivington and for the reconstruction of the gas distribmution system in Irvington to supply 158 prospective consumers.

"The supply of gas to Irvington was made possible through the recent extension of mains to serve Niles, Centerville, Alvarado and Newark. The Irvington system will start from a point on the present feeder lines now in the vicinity of Centerville."

Preparations for the Card Party to be given by the Child Welfare Club Saturday, Oct. 13, at 8 p.m. in the Washington Township Country Club House are well under way.

The tickets were printed by the Washington Union High School Press and generously donated to the cause.

Excellent prizes have been contributed by the members of the club. Refreshments will be served.

The motive is one that is certain to make a strong appeal to the public and it is believed that the response will be sufficiently adequate to insure funds for immediate assistance in financing the new Welfare Home for Southern Alemeda County.

This home will care for all children under the jurisdiction of the Southern Alameda County Welfare Board.

PHYSICAL TESTS COMPLETED AT WASHINGTON HI

GENERAL CONDITION GOOD, WITH MANY OF DEFECTS CORRECTED.

The yearly physical examination of W. U. H. S. was completed this week by Dr. E. A. Ormsby, the school physician, and Miss Lena Shinnick, County nurse.

On the whole, things are in good condition, they find. The Dental Repair work, for which the school has always had a record, did not fall below that of other years. Many defects found by Miss G. Reid last year, primarily those of the eyes and teeth, were corrected during the year.

Many of the girls were found to be more than 10 per cent underweight. Some of the boys suffered from the same condition.

"In combatting underweight," said Shinnick, "not only food, but rest is an important factor. Many of the students were coming to school without sufficient sleep. In cases of underweight, an average of from 9 to 10 hours sleep a night is advisable. I would strongly urge that parents see to it that children eat breakfast before coming to school, particularly when the child is underweight."

It is planned to send letters to all parents, advising them of their children's condition, whether or not there are defects. Also, Miss Shinnick plans to have office hours at school every Monday from 1:30 to 2:30, when parents or children may come to her for consultation. The co-operation of both the school and the parents has always been good. Where defects are found parents are urged to consult their family physician to make sure that the best thing is being done for the child. In the school, the faculty was very helpful about excusing children from classes, and keeping them moving, so the work of examination was not delayed.

A check-up was made on tonsillectomies and it was found that about one-third of the students had had their tonsils removed at some time in their lives.

UNAVOIDABLE IS JURY VERDICT OF TRUCK EXPLOSION

A coroner's jury sitting at an inquest conducted by Coroner Grant D. Miller of Oakland at Reimers' Funeral Parlors, in Livermore, Thursday morning brought in a verdict of unavoidable accident in the explosion of a gas tank on an auto truck last Friday which caused the death of three Hetch Hetchy employes—Cornelius Lane, Pierre Narberes and Edouard Gassiott.

J. Wilbur, foreman at the Alameda creek camp of the Hetch Hetchy project, was the principal witness, describing the fatal mishap in detail. Robert Callaghan, driver of the truck, is still confined to the hospital and was unable to be present at the inquest. The jury decided that the accident was unavoidable and that no individual or the Hetch Hetchy organization could be held responsible.

The service has been secured through the efforts of the Alisal Improvement Club which has been working for several months to have a mail route established for the residents of that fast growing section. Examinations will be held in Livermore on Friday October 12th for the position of rural mail carrier and only persons residing in the territory served by the Pleasanton postoffice are eligible to take the examination. Deliveries will be made on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 11 o'clock.

New RADIO DISCOVERY

"Neutrodyne-Plus"

TO Neutrodyne, famous for absolute purity of tone, Philco engineers have added a PLUS! For the first time, super-power without sacrificing tone quality—a combination new to radio. The result:

Vast Distance Range

Thanks to Philco's super-power, you can now get and fully enjoy out-of-town programs. You will get many low-power stations that you never knew existed—stations which the average set is not powerful enough to pick up.

Amazing Selectivity

Marvelously sharp tuning! Only a hair's-breadth turn many times tunes out one station completely and brings another booming in! One-dial control; no more "groping" for stations.

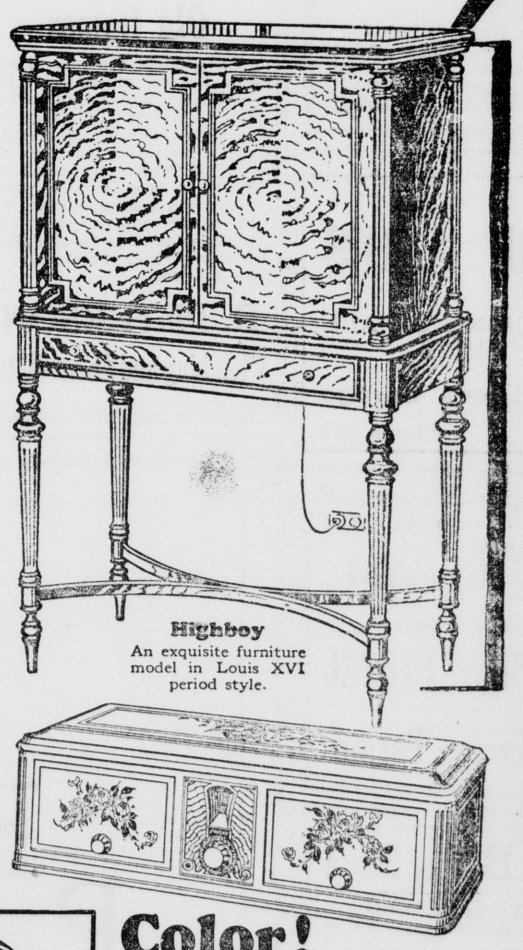
Flawless Tone

Flawless RE-production! Close your eyes as you listen. You're hearing more than a radio performance—an actual RE-production just as rendered before the microphone.



Highboy
An exquisite furniture model in Louis XVI period style.

Free Trial In Your Home

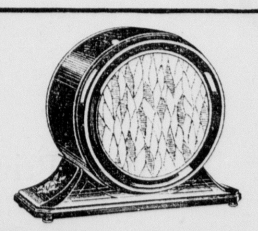
Yes, we will deliver the new all-electric Philco for you to try out in your own home free! We'll just plug it into the light socket and leave it for you to operate. See how "Neutrodyne-Plus" gives you better performance and greater pleasure than you have ever had from radio before. If not delighted, we will take the Philco back and that ends the matter. No charge—no obligation!

Easy Payments

If satisfied, we make it easy for you to own the Philco! Only a small down payment—balance in easy monthly payments you'll never even miss.

Trade In Your Old Radio

We will make you a very liberal trade-in allowance for your old, out-of-date set. Now you can own this marvelous Philco Electric Radio (no batteries—no liquids) without taking a dead loss on your old set. Come in and see how much it is worth in trade.



The Philco Speaker

Reproduces the entire musical scale, high notes and low notes, with perfect fidelity. A tonal depth, uniform resonance and true articulation that is new to radio. Improves reception on any set. In colors.

Color!

Now for the first time, radio in color! Vivid colors to harmonize with the setting in your home! Your choice of five colors. Come in and see them!

And—at a price!

Furniture models at moderate prices—AND—the same Philco instrument in table models at popular prices! MAXIMUM Philco Performance no matter what price you pay.

Pleasanton Tax Rate Same as Last Year

The City Council of Pleasanton, in session Monday evening set the tax rate at $1.40 for the year 1928-29. The rate is the same as it was last year. After discussing the budget of the city for the ensuing year, it was felt that the same rate could be retained another year and sufficient funds would be derived for municipal expenditures. The rate is divided up as follows: General Fund, $1; Municipal Improvement Bond Fund, 10c; City and Bond Fund, 8c.

MINISTERIAL UNION PLANS SCHOOL FOR RELIGIOUS LEADERS

Plans for a school of religious leadership were formulated at a meeting Tuesday morning of the Hayward Minnsterial union. The school will be held at the Methodist church there between 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock on the evenings of October 15 and 16, 23 and 24, and 29 and 30.

Hayward churches whose pastors are members of the union and churches of several neighboring communities, including those at Pleasanton, and Newark, will cooperate in the project.

The school will be divided into five study groups—primary department, junior department, young people's work, elements of teaching and general church work. It is being arranged in connection with a program of the California Council of Religious Education, with similar schols being held in Oakland and San Francisco.

The first school of the kind in this township was held at Niles last year with about 45 persons attending. The sponsors hope that 75 or more will attend this year's school, whose purpose is to improve the system of teaching in Sunday school and general church gatherings.

A staff of specialists in religious teachings is being gathered for the school, and announcement of the personnel is to be made within a few days.

The Rev. Richard C. Day is president of the Ministerial union and the Rev. Charles E. Lukens, Jr., is secretary.

Niles Kraft Juniors Play Snappy Baseball

Sunday the Niles Kraft Juniors won their third straight victory, when they defeated Centerville Juniors 17-15. It was a close and exciting game.

Next week, the Niles team is scheduled to play the Hayward Juniors at Ashland at 10:30. They hope to come home with another victory, but Hayward Juniors may put one over on them, for they are favored to win.

The Niles team, is particularly grateful to Kenneth Leash of the International Wood Products Company for the suits which he donated, and which were worn for the first time Sunday.

MUTUAL OPENS NEW PLANT IN SAN FRANCISCO

Offices, Machinery, Bakery Creamery and Roaster Installed

their policy of expansion over central California, the Mutual Stores are now in their new plant and headquarters building in San Francisco, on Twelfth street between Howard and Folsom.

This building, with its equipment, represents an investment of a million dollars, and houses the offices, warehouses, bakers, creamers, coffee roasting plant and shops, serving all Mutual and Jenny Wren stores in San Francisco and the peninsula cities.

200,000 Cubic Feet of Room

The new Mutual building is a three story concrete structure, with a floor space of approximately 200,000 cubic feet. It formerly was occupied by the California Baking company and is fully equipped with the latest style machinery, traveling ovens and other bakery equipment, which will be used to serve the San Francisco stores with bread and pastry. A complete new creamery has been installed also, to pasteurize and bottle the milk and cream for the San Francisco stores, with a complete refrigeration system and storage freezer for ice cream.

The coffee roasting plant which serves the entire Mutual system is now in this building too, and has been improved by the addition of considerable new machinery. Both the grocery and produce warehouses for the San Francisco stores are here with their bookkeeping and billing offices.

Mechanic Shops Too

Carpenter, paint and machine shops for the stores and motor equipment occupy part of the ground floor of the new building, and garage space for the large fleet of Mutual trucks is also included here. Above the offices an auditorium with a seating capacity of 500 is provided for the employes, with a complete kitchen in connection.

At present there are about 85 Mutual and Jenny Wren on the San Francisco side of the bay, which will be served from the new building Leases have been signed for 25 additional stores which will open during the next few weeks, and further expansion is contemplated for the near future

325 Stores by December 31

The occupation of this building is the latest in a series of large transactions completed by the Mutual Stores during the past year. The company has recently completed a million dollar building in Oakland to serve the Eastbay stores, and early this year bought the chain of Jenny Wren markets, consisting of 54 units. The Mutual Stores now operate 285 stores and markets in more than 20 cities and towns, and present plans call for expansion to about 325 by the end of the year.

SPEEDERS FILL DOCKET OF JUDGE NORRIS COURT

Nathaniel B. Matheny, of San Jose, was brought before Judge Norris at Centerville Tuesday on a charge of going forty miles in a twenty-mile zone. As his defense, he told the court that his wife was critically ill at a San Jose hospital, and he was rushing to get to her. He produced a newspaper clipping to substantiate his story, and the judge dismissed his case.

W. C. Zent, Pittsburg, was fined $10 for speeding; George Salt, San Francisco, $5; W. King Grovan, Tulare, $10; Pete Fraticelli, Oakland, $15; Crispin Pelaiz, Irvington, $15; and Frank P. Joyce, Decoto, $10.

Tajiro Baba, of Irvington, who ran into Officer A. Larsen, was to be tried of reckless driving. However, the charge was changed to cutting corners, and he paid a $10 fine, and cost of repair on the motorcycle.

H. P. Garin Purchases Grapes at Top Price

Frank Gomez, well-known farmer of the northern part of this valley, reports that he has sold his entire crop of Alacante grapes to H. P. Garin of Pleasanton for $31 per ton on the vine.

Mr. Gomez has thirty-five acres of grapes and he estimates that the crop will produce about 80 tons.

So far as we know this is the top price received for grapes in this valley. Other growers are getting around $25 per ton, and are doing their own picking and hauling.

JAMES S. MILLARD OF IRVINGTON DEAD IN 61st YEAR

The funeral of James S. Millard, a resident of Irvington, in the Irvington Comunity Church at 2:30. Mr. Milliard was 61 years of age. For many years he has been a trustee of the Irvington Grammar school and was one of the trustees actively engaged in promoting the building the new school which was completed a few years ago. He is survived by his widow, and four grown children, Lawrence, Harold, June and Viola. Interment took place in Odd Fellows cemetery in Irvington.

FULL DAY DEPUTY CRYING NEED OF TOWNSHIP COURTS

Business is increasing so rapidly in the Niles Justice Court, that a Deputy Sheriff will have to devote a whole day to it, instead of sharing with Livermore, is the opinion of J. A. Silva, Justice of the Peace.

Several jury trials were set for Tuesday, but they had to be continued because the Deputy was not here in time. This delay irks jurors, who are none too anxious to serve at best. It is almost imposible to get a fair jury on a bootleg charge, in this neighborhood. Almost everyone is prejudiced, either for or against.

Three cases were settled. The first was the araignment of Joe Castelhano, who was charged with Battery by J. P. Nunes some time ago. He pled guilty and was fined $100 or one day in jail for every two dollars.

Manuel T. Costa of Alvarado was fined $75 for possession of Jackass brandy.

Gustavo Ramero, who was held in jail 17 days before arraignment, was given a suspended sentence, in view of that fact, even though he pled guilty, since it was the court's opinion that he had already paid his penalty.

The jury trials are set; that of Anton and Mary E. Santos for October 9; that of Juan Gomez and Tony Vargas for the 16th; and that of Anton Quiz and Martin Medini for the 23rd.

CHILDREN'S DEPTRTMENT MEETS AT NILES LIBRARY

Remodelling of the Child Welfare Home to be established at the Harry Tyson place on the Niles-Centerville road is rapidly nearing completion according to reports made at a meeting of the Children's Department at the Niles library Thursday morning. All four townships were represented and Pesident E. W. Burr heartily complimented the women on their enthusiasm and zeal in promoting this this organization which was formed to look after the welfare of the children of this district dependent upon the public for various reasons for help.

One of the points stressed is the forming of individual groups of women who wish to have a part in this worthwhile and interesting work. A number of women's clubs have organized sections to be known as Welfare Departments who will have as their especial program projects in the interest of this children's home. The Hill and Valley club of Hayward organized such a department and promised $20 a month for the up-keep of the home.

Mrs. R. W. McCord, executive secretary, reported that the day the house in Niles is ready for occupancy it will be filled to capacity, seven being available at present.

Reports were made by Mrs. Sam Hocking, of Livermore, regarding the financial committee; Mrs. W. S. Clarke, of Hayward, secretary; Mrs. Walter Flierle, of Hayward, ways and means committee; Mrs. R. W. McCord, foster homes; Mrs. A. A. Hatch, of Niles, clothes committee; Mrs. Frank Dusterberry, of Centerville, house committee.

As soon as renovation of the home is completed members of the Children's Department will be invited for a visit of inspection. The group present complimented Mrs. Dusterberry upon her management of the home securing committee and it was voted to recommend a three-year lease with privilege of renewal to the Welfare Board at the next meeting.

Maintainance of the home for the rest of this year has been apportioned as follows: Eden and Washington Townships, $40 each; Murray and Pleasanton Townships, $10 each. The Pleasanton group reported their quota already raised and the Hayward representatives reported a substantial beginning on theirs.

Speakers from the Children's Department will address various organizations with regard to the needs of this project. Any club wishing a speaker should confer with some member and arrange a date.

The greatest need is the finding of foster homes. A special article regarding this phase of the work will appear in The Township Register at an early date.

ART GOEBAL WINS AGAIN ON L. A. OHIO RICHFIELD FLIGHT

Making the distance between the Southern California metropolis, and the Ohio city in 15 hours and 17 minutes in his Richfield powered Lockheed Vega monoplane "Yankee Doodle," Goebal crossed the finish line at Iunken Airport, Cincinnati at 10:25 on Saturday after leaving Los Angeles at 4:05 p. m. on Friday.

This new record does much to make Art Goebel nearly as widely known as "Lindy," and reflects credit on the gasoline he uses in his plane.

His other honors include the winning of the Dole flight to Hawaii, and his recent smashing of all existing non-stop records between Los Angeles and New York. He was also the sole flyer to finish (though disqualified) in the attempted non-stop transcontinental race of the National Air Derby during the recent Aeronautical Exposition at Los Angeles.

Goebel was converted to Richfield gasoline recently by other famous flyers, notably by the fact that Captain George Wilkins had used it with success on his Polar flight and planned to use it for the South Pole Expedition. He has expressed himself as satisfied that its dependability has greatly helped him in making his many recent phenomenal, long-distance air successes.

Lustig's Move To New Hayward Location

Lustigs will begin on Monday next to move the remainder of their hardware and furniture, and general stock to the lot just south of their present quarters in Hayward. Within ten days thereafter the rambling building now occupied will have been moved, and preparation will have been under way for the new two-story structure that will house the Lustig business after January.

COLLEEN MOORE IN O-KAY AT NILES THEATER SUNDAY

Sunday and Monday, Colleen Moore will play in "Oh Kay" at the Niles Theater. It is one of the most hilarious shows she has ever put on, when this charming lady-bootlegger poses as substitute bride-to-be for a man she'd never seen before to escape the revenue officers.

Tonight's picture, Milton Stills in "Burning Daylight," is a good adventure, based on a Jack London story. Friday features Bob Steele in "Captain Careless."

Ken Maynard in "The Wagon Show" has plenty of riding tricks. He outwits the bad men of the West, and outrides the circus star, before cheering crowds. The double interest of the West and the circus in this one picture.

Next week, Tuesday, will have Jacqueline Logan in "Charge of the Gauchos" and Wednesday and Thursday will have a double bill, Ladies' Night in the Turkish Bath," and Buzz Barton in "The Pinto Kid."

Last Tuesday afternoon, the theater showed the first reel of the new serial free to the children, which was very popular.

Beet Growers Receive Last Year Payment

Within the past week the beet growers of the Pleasanton district received their final payment for beets delivered to the Spreckles Sugar Co. last fall. The payment was based on the schedule of 5.3 cents per pound net selling price of sugar to the company. The low schedule was due to sugar bringing such a low average price during the year which has followed the delivery of the beets.

There was great excitement in our little town last Friday afternoon when the chimney of Butler's Restaurant caught on fire. The fire was well under way before noticed but the quick action of the fire department put out the blaze with little damage resulting.

CHRITICISM ROUSED AS WELLS DROPPED BY CIVIL SERVICE

Much criticism has been heard in Pleasanton since announcement was made in the daily press last Saturday that Lee Wells of Pleasanton had been dropped from the civil service eligible list as a seasonal deputy and that the action of the Alameda County Civil Service Commission has been disclosed in a letter to County Tax Collector Ed Planer by Leroy Bartlette, secretary of the commission. The letter advised that Wells could not be certified for seasonal work as a deputy under Planer.

The fact that Wells, who resides in Pleasanton, became a candidate for an elective office was given as the reason for his being deprived of civil service standing. Running for office, according to an opinion of the District Attorney rendered several months ago to the commission, constitutes a violation of that section of the county charter which prohibits political activity on the part of civil service employees. Under this section the commission may dismiss offending employees.

According to Wells, he applied for a leave of absence when his season's work was completed and prior to his filing his nomination papers. At the same time County Assessor Louis Kennedy, under whom he also works, asked that the commission give him a leave of absence to which he was entitled since he has been in the employ of the county for ten years. This was refused and his resignation was accepted. In view of the fact that Wells' work as a seasonal deputy under both Planer and Kennedy and that the work does not require his time more than eight months in the year and at that, not in successive months, Wells felt that with a leave of absence he could campaign without injuring his status with the commission. He asserts that he ran for the supervisorship at the solicitation of his friends and because he believed it was a promotion and that the commission sanctioned its employees advancing themselves, when it was possible.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

No Rags Baffles Press!

The Register is puzzled, confronted by the mystery of the missing rags. For some weeks we have been running ads, offering 8 cents a pound for clean cotton rags, which is the highest price ever proffered. Whether the community wears cast-iron clothes that don't wear out, or whether it doesn't see the ads, is a question whose solution we wait with the breathless anticipation of a mystery story climax. Will some kind soul tell us at least, why there are no rags in Washington Township?

GUY BATES POST BACK TO AMERICA IN SAUCY COMEDY

With the opening of "The Play's The Thing," starring Guy Bates Post, the San Francisco theater season got under way. The play is at the new Capitol theater, after a season in London and a world tour. It is a saucy and brilliant comedy, of an entirely different genre from Molnar's best known play, "Lilum," and proved to be an outstanding success at the Henry Miller theater, in New York last season.

Mr. Post will play only three cities on the Pacific Coast, according to O. D. Woodward, director of the tour.

The engagement will be short, with Matinees on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons only.

This is the first appearance on the American stage of Mr. Post since his return from Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Great Britain, where he was acclaimed as America's foremost actor.

CAR STOLEN; THEN WRECKED AND LEFT AT WARM SPRINGS

An act of vandalism was committed last Thursday night, when a Chevrolet sedan belonging to M. Marchisio, Centerville, was stolen and taken to Warm Springs landing. It was abandoned there, but not until all five tires had been cut, the plate glass broken, and the motormeter and spark plugs destroyed. The car was supposed to have been traded in on a new car, but had not yet been delivered.

Clearly, there was no motive of robbery, though there may have been revenge. Manuel J. Bernardo, the constable, confessed himself at a loss to discover the perpetrators of the outrage.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak. My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. THE EARLIEST PICTURE OF THE LANDING OF COLUMBUS

A unique engraving made to illustrate an Italian poem by Guiliano Dato, printed in Florence in 1493, shortly after Columbus' return. From a facsimile of the original in the British Museum, reproduced in the Yale University Press "Pageant of America."

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER 12 is a day which Americans set aside for honoring the memory of the Genoese sailor who is almost universally credited with being the "discoverer" of the New World and in twenty-three states of the Union—Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Montana, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Vermont and Washington—Columbus day is a legal holiday

Most of us know something about Columbus, for the story of his life with the record of its dauntless ambition which drove him on in spite of many disappointments and discouragements until success came to him, only to end in poverty and failure, is one of the most romantic and at the same time one of the most tragic in the annals of mankind. But what of the history-making event itself, the anniversary of which we are about to celebrate again? How clear a picture do we have of what took place on that October day, 436 years ago? For all of the millions of words that have been written about Christopher Columbus and his voyages of discovery in the past four centuries, there is none which paints the scene more vividly than do the words of an American historian who wrote of it more than a hundred years ago, and modern scholarship has found but little to correct in the record as it is set down by Washington Irving in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus."

Here is the story of that historic day as Irving tells it:

It was on Friday morning the 12th of October, that Columbus first beheld the New World. As the day dawned he saw before him a level island, several leagues in extent, and covered with trees like a continual orchard. Though apparently uncultivated, it was populous, for the inhabitants were seen issuing from all parts of the woods and running to the shore. They were perfectly naked, and, as they stood gazing at the ships, appeared by their attitudes and gestures to be lost in astonishment. Columbus made signal for the ships to cast anchor, and the boats to be manned and armed. He entered his own boat, richly attired in scarlet, and hiding the royal standard; while Martin Alonzo Pinzon, and Vicente Yanez, his brother, put off in company in their boats, each with a banner of the enterprise emblazoned with a green cross, having on either side the letters F. and Y. the initials of the Castilian monarchs, Fernando and Ysabel, surmounted by crowns.

As he approached the shore, Columbus, who was disposed for all kinds of agreeable impressions, was delighted with the purity and suavity of the atmosphere, the crystal transparency of the sea, and the extraordinary beauty of the vegetation. He beheld, also, fruits of an unknown kind upon the trees which overhung the shores. On landing he threw himself on his knees, kissed the earth, and returned thanks to God with tears of joy. His example was followed by the rest, whose hearts indeed overflowed with the same feelings of gratitude. Columbus, then rising, drew his sword, displayed the royal standard, and assembling round him the two captains, with Rodrigo de Escobedo, notary of the armament, Rodrigo Sanchez, and the rest who had landed, he took solemn possession in the name of the Castilian sovereigns, giving the island the name of San Salvador. Having complied with the requisite forms and ceremonies, he called upon all present to take the oath of obedience to him, as admiral and viceroy, representing the persons of the sovereigns.

The feelings of the crew now burst forth in the most extravagant transports. They had recently considered themselves devoted men, hurrying forward to destruction; they now looked upon themselves as favorites of fortune, and gave themselves up to the most unbounded joy. They thronged around the admiral with overflowing zeal, some embracing him, others kissing his hands. Those who had been most mutinous and turbulent during the voyage were now most devoted and enthusiastic. Some begged favors of him, as if he already had wealth and honors in his gift. Many abject spirits, who had outraged him by their insolence, now crouched at his feet, begging pardon for all the trouble they had caused him and promising the blindest obedience for the future.

The natives of the island, when, at the dawn of day, they had beheld the ships hovering on their coast, had supposed them monsters which had issued from the deep during the night. They had crowded to the beach and watched their movements with awful anxiety. Their veering about, apparently without effort, and the shifting and furling of their sails, resembling huge wings, filled them with astonishment. When they beheld their boats approach the shore, and a number of strange beings clad in glittering steel, or raiment of various colors, landing upon the beach, they fled in affright to the woods. Finding, however, that there was no attempt to pursue or molest them, they gradually recovered from their terror, and approached the Spaniards with great awe; frequently prostrating themselves on the earth, and making signs of adoration. During the ceremonies of taking possession, they remained gazing in timid admiration at the complexion, the beards, the shining armor, and splendid dress of the Spaniards. The admiral particularly attracted their attention, from his commanding height, his air of authority, his dress of scarlet, and the deference which was paid him by his companions; all which pointed him out to be the commander. When they had still further recovered from their fears, they approached the Spaniards, touched their beards, and examined their hands and faces, admiring their whiteness. Columbus was pleased with their gentleness and confiding simplicity, and suffered their scrutiny with perfect acquiescence, winning them by his benignity. They now supposed that the ships had sailed out of the crystal firmament which bounded their horizon, or had descended from above on their ample wings, and that these marvelous beings were inhabitants of the skies.

The natives of the island were no less objects of curiosity to the Spaniards, differing, as they did, from any race of men they had ever seen. Their appearance gave no promise of either wealth or civilization, for they were entirely naked, and painted with a variety of colors. With some it was confined merely to a part of the face, the nose or around the eyes; with others it extended to the whole body and gave them a wild and fantastic appearance. Their complexion was of a tawny or copper hue, and they were entirely destitute of beards. Their hair was not crisped, like the recently discovered tribes of the African coast, under the same latitude, but straight and coarse, partly cut short above the ears, but some locks were left long behind and falling upon their shoulders. Their features, though obscured and disfigured by paint, were agreeable; they had lofty foreheads and remarkably fine eyes. They were of moderate stature and well-shaped; most of them appeared to be under thirty years of age; there was but one female with them, quite young, naked like her companions, but beautifully formed.

As Columbus supposed himself to have landed on an island and at the extremity of India, he called the natives by the general appellation of Indians, which was universally adopted before the true nature of his discovery was known, and has since been extended to all the aboriginals of the New World.

The islanders were friendly and gentle. Their only arms were lances, hardened at the end by fire, or pointed with a flint, or the teeth or bone of a fish. There was no iron to be seen, nor did they appear acquainted with its properties; for, when a drawn sword was presented to them they unguardedly took it by the edge.

Columbus distributed among them colored caps, glass beads, hawks' bells, and other trifles, such as the Portuguese were accustomed to trade with among the nations of the gold coast of Africa. They received them eagerly, hung the beads round their necks, and were wonderfully pleased with their finery, and with the sound of the bells. The Spaniards remained all day on shore, refreshing themselves after their anxious voyage amid the beautiful groves of the island

The island where Columbus had thus, for the first time, set his foot upon the New World was called by the natives Guanahane. It still retains the name of San Salvador, which he gave it, though called by the English Cat Island. The light which he had seen the evening previous to his making land may have been on Watling's Island, which lies a few leagues to the east. San Salvador is one of the great cluster of the Lucayos or Bahama Islands, which stretch southeast and northwest, from the coast of Florida to Hispaniola.

Columbus' Story Lost

When Columbus returned to Spain from the New World, he stopped on February 14, 1493, at Santa Maria, one of the islands of the Azores, probably to take water. Four days before this he had encountered a most terrific storm and was convinced that he, his men and his vessels must perish.

Now Columbus realized in his heart that he was going back to Spain with news of a discovery second in importance to no other. And when it seemed that his ship would sink at any moment he set to work to make a record of his mighty undertaking, hoping that by some will of the Fates it would not be lost to posterity.

So he carefully prepared as complete an account of his marvelous voyage as was possible under the circumstances. He wrote the details of his journey on a stout piece of parchment, wrapped it carefully in a piece of waterproof cloth, then placed it in an ironbound barrel and threw it into the raging ocean. But the Fates were kinder to Columbus than to this account made in a time of stress.

Certainly this, the first record of America, written by the brave hand of Columbus, would be the most precious relic in all the chronicles of our country. Alas, that it never has been found! And if I thought there were one chance in a million of finding it I would take my power boat, the First Folio, and cruise in the neighborhood of the Azores forever!—S. W. WILD WOLVES

"It's more fun to have enemies than not to know the joys of being wild," said the Gray Wolf.

"Children aren't like wolves, not like wolves in the least.

"They'd never hunt for sheep at night, they'd never like the taste of young sheep, uncooked."

"Perhaps they're glad they're not like us," said the other wolves.

"Perhaps," said the Gray Wolf. "But the idea seems rather funny, very funny, in fact."

"All depends on the point of view," said the other wolves.

"I'm glad I've a wolf's point of view," said the Gray Wolf.

"My family is not always so daring as once they were," continued the Gray Wolf.

"That is—the different members of my family.

"We're still brave! Oh, if an enemy goes for one of us, how we can fight!

"We don't run away. We fight and do our best to win.

"But since so many people have carried guns with them in the countries where we were, we have been a little more careful.

"We haven't taken any foolish chances. We've known that guns were dangerous, very, very dangerous.

"And yet when brought to bay, or brought right up to the point where it was up to us to fight or meekly give in, we've fought, we have."

"Ah," said the other wolves, "it seems to us that you are brave."

"You're only careful and you only hide when it is wise to do so.

"It would be foolish to take chances No sensible animal would do that."

"I'm glad you all agree with me," said the Gray Wolf. "And I like to talk of the things my family do and of the things I did when I was free, and of our splendid behavior when danger was near."

"We're Still Brave."

"And we like to hear of such things," said the other wolves.

"We love to hear of the wild life, for wolves are wild, ah yes, they're wild."

"Wild wolves, how sweet the words sound," said the Gray Wolf, growling in none too sweet a voice.

"Ah yes," he continued, "it really isn't fair to ourselves to say we aren't as brave as once we were.

"Since men have done so much hunting with guns we have not had the even chance that once we had.

"We haven't anything such as a gun with which to protect ourselves.

"We must be more careful, much more careful, and so neither I, nor anyone, should really say we are less brave.

"The joys of being wild are very great, though, very great indeed."

And the other wolves looked as though they thought the same.

Fig Tree's Lesson

Once upon a time, there was a house surrounded by a pretty yard in which grew a large fig tree. A family moved into this place, and the mistress soon saw that it was the playground of many beautiful birds, who visited it daily.

When the figs began to ripen, the very air resounded with music. The mistress of the house made herself very unhappy by picturing the birds as greedily eating all of them and leaving none for her, and one morning she went out to the tree and saw that one of the first and finest of the figs, which she had wanted for her own, had ripened and the birds had eaten a hearty meal from it.

At first she was very resentful; but when she calmly thought the situation over, she came to the conclusion that the figs belonged by right as much to the birds as they did to her, and she was content to share the fruit with them. Day by day so many figs ripened that besides what the birds ate, she had more than she could use. She made preserves and then had still more which she gave to a neighbor, and was always thankful for this lesson from the fig tree.

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. "Quite probably," came in even more mournful tones. "But this girl didn't say no—she said 'rats!'"—Stray Stories.

CHAPTER I.

A rider jogged northward along the road on a big pinto horse, a red buckskin, packed, trailing a half-length behind. A ranch road branched off to the left and the man pulled up his horse to view a sign that stood at the forks.

"Squatter, don't let the sun go down on you," he read. "That's the third one of those reminders, Calico," he told the horse. "The wording a little different but the sentiment all the same."

Fifty yards off the trail the charred and blackened fragments of a wagon showed in sharp contrast to the bleached white bones of two horses.

"They downed his team and torched his worldy goods," the rider said. "All his hopes gone up in smoke."

He turned in his saddle and looked off across the unending expanse of sage. Coldriver—probably so named from the fact that the three wells in the town constituted the only source of water within an hour's ride—lay thirty miles to the south, a cluster of some forty buildings nestling on a wind-swept flat. Seventy miles beyond it, and with but two more such centers of civilization between, the railroad stretched across the rolling desolation.

The man took one more look at the evidence left behind to prove that the sign was no empty threat before heading the paint-horse along the left-hand fork. He noted that the range cows along his route were poor and lean, their hip bones showing lumpily through sagging skin, giving them the appearance of milkers rather than beef stock. The preceding summer had been hot and dry, browning the range six weeks before its time, and the stock had gone into the winter in poor shape. Heavy snowfalls had completed the havoc and 10 per cent of the range stock had been winter-killed. Those that had pulled through were slow in putting on weight and recovering their strength.

A big red steer stood broadside to him, the Three Bar brand looming on its side, and the man once more pulled up his horse and lost himself in retrospection as he gazed at the brand.

"The old Three Bar, Calico," he remarked to the horse. "The old home brand. It's been many a moon since last I laid an eye on a Three Bar cow."

The man was gazing directly at the steer but he no longer saw it. Instead he was picturing the old-time scenes that the sight of the brand recalled. Step by step he visioned the long trail of the Three Bar cows from Dodge City to the Platte, from the Platte to the rolling sage-clad hills round old Fort Laramie and from Laramie to the present range.

His mind pictured two boys of somewhere round eighteen years of age setting forth from the little home town of Kansas City, nestling at the confluence of the Missouri and the Kaw. A year later Cal Warren was whacking bulls on the Santa Fe trail while the other, William Harris, was holding the reins over four plunging horses as he tooled a lumbering Concord stage over the trail from Omaha to the little camp called Denver.

It was five years before their trails crossed again. Cal Warren was the first of the two to wed, and he had established a post along the trail, a rambling structure of 'dobe, poles and sod, and there conducted the business of "Two for One," a calling impossible and unknown in any other than that day and place.

The long bull trains were in sight from horizon to horizon every hour of the day. The grind of the gravel wore down the hoofs of the unshod oxen, and when footsore they could not go on. One sound bull for two with tender feet was Warren's rule of trade. These crippled ones were soon made sound in the puddle pen, a sod corral flooded with sufficient water to puddle the yellow clay into a six-inch layer of stiff, healing mud, then thrown out on the open range to fatten and grow strong. But transitions were swift and sweeping. Steel rails were crowding close behind the prairie schooners and the ox-bows. Bull trains grew fewer every year and eventually Cal Warren made his last trade of two for one.

Bill Harris had come back to view the railroad of which he had heard so much and he remained to witness and to be a part of the wild days of Abilene, Hays and Dodge, as each attained the apex of its glory as the railroad's end and the consequent destination of the Texas trail herds. The sight of these droves of thousands implanted a desire to run cows himself and when he was wed in Dodge he broached this project to his boyhood pal.

It was the sincere wish of each to gain the other as a partner in all future enterprise, but this was not to be. Warren had seen the bottom drop out of the bull trade and he would not relinquish the suspicion that any business dealing in four-footed stock was hazardous in the extreme and he insisted that the solution of all their financial problems rested upon owning land, not cows. Harris could not be induced to farm the soil while steers were selling round eight dollars a head.

Warren squatted on a quarter of land. Harris bought a few head of she-stock and grazed his cows north and west across the Kansas line into the edge of the great unknown that was styled Nebraska and Northwest district. At first his range was limitless, but in a few short years he could stand on the roof of his sod hut and see the white points of light which were squatters' wagons dotting the range to the far horizon in any direction he chose to look. The first of these to invade his range had been Cal Warren, moving on before the swarm of settlers flocking into the locality of his first choice in such alarming numbers that he feared an unhealthy congestion of humanity in the near future. The debate of farming versus cows was resumed between the two, but each held doggedly to his own particular views and the longed-for partnership was again postponed.

Harris moved once more—and then again—and it was something over two decades after his departure from Dodge with the Three Bar cows that he made one final shift, faring on in search of that land where nesters were unknown. He made a dry march that cost him a fourth of his cows, skirted the Colorado desert and made his stand under the first rim of the hills. Those others who came to share this range were men whose views were identical with his own, whose watchword was: "Our cows shall run free on a thousand hills." They sought for a spot where the range was untouched by the plow and the water holes unfenced. They had moved, then moved, again, driven on before the invasion of the settlers. These men banded together and swore that here conditions should be reversed, that it was the squatter who should move, and on this principle they grimly rested.

Cal Warren had been the vanguard of each new rush of settlers that had pushed Bill Harris on to another range, and the cowman had come to see the hand of fate in this persistence. When the Warren family found him again and halted their white-topped wagon before his door, Bill Harris gave it up.

"I've come to see about getting that partnership fixed up, Bill," Warren greeted. "You know—the one we talked over in Dodge a while ago, about our going in together when either of us changed his mind. Well, I've changed mine. I've come to see that running cows is a good game, Bill, so let's fix it up. I've changed my mind."

"That was twenty years ago, Cal," Harris said. "But it still holds good—only I've changed my mind, too. You was dead right from the first. Squatters will come to roost on every foot of ground and there'll come a day when I'll have to turn squatter myself—so I might as well start now. The way to get used to crowds, Cal, is to go where the crowds are at. I'm headed back for Kansas and you better come along. We'll get that partnership fixed up."

A single child had come to bless each union in the parents' late middle age. The Harris heir, a boy of eight, had been named Calvin in honor of his father's friend. Cal Warren had as nearly returned the compliment as circumstances would permit, and his three-year-old daughter bore the name of Williamette Ann for both father and mother of the boy who was his namesake, and Warren styled her Billie for short.

Each man was as stubbornly set in his new views as he had been in the old. The Harrises came into possession of the Warren's prairie schooner and drove off to the east. The Warrens took over the Three Bar ranch and the little Williamette Ann slept in the tiny bunk built for the son of the Harris household.

For a space of minutes these old pictures occupied the mind of the man on the pinto horse. Distant strings of prairie schooners and ox-bows faded from his mind's eye and he was once more conscious of the red steer with the Three Bar brand that had stirred up the train of reflections. He turned for another glimpse of the distant sign as he headed the paint-horse along the road.

"All that was quite a spell back, Calico," he said. "Old Bill Harris planted the first one of those signs, and it served a good purpose then. It's a sign that stands for lack of progress today. Times change, and it's been eighteen years or so since old Bill Harris left."

The road traversed the bench, angled down a side hill to a valley somewhat more than a mile across. Calico pricked up his ears sharply toward the Three Bar buildings that stood at the upper end of it.

Curious eyes peered from the bunk house as he neared it, for the paint-horse and the buckskin were not without fame even if the man himself were a stranger to them all. For the better part of a year the two high-colored horses had been seen on the range—south to the railroad, west to the Idaho line. The man had kept to himself and when seen by approaching riders he had always been angling on a course that would miss their own. Those who had, out of curiosity, deliberately ridden out to intercept him reported that he seemed a decent sort of citizen, willing to converse on any known topics except those concerning himself.

He dropped from the saddle before the bunk house and as he stood in the door he noted half a dozen men lounging on the bunks. This indolence apprised him of the fact that they were extra men signed on for the summer season and that their pay had not yet started, for the cowhand, when on the pay roll, works sixteen hours daily and when he rests or frolics it is, except in rare instances, on his own time and at his own expense.

A tall, lean individual, who sat cross-legged on a bunk, engaged in mending a spur strap, was the first to answer his inquiry for the foreman.

"Billie Warren is the big he-coon of the Three Bar," he informed. "You'll likely find the boss at the blacksmith shop." The lanky one grinned as the stranger turned back through the littel of log outbuildings, guided by the hissing squeak of bellows and the clang of a suedge on hot iron. Several men pressed close to the windows in anticipation of viewing the newcomer's surprise at greeting the Three Bar boss. But the man did not seem surprised when a young girl emerged from the open door of the shop as he neared it.

She was clad in a gray flannel skirt and black angora chaps. The heavy brown hair was concealed beneath the broad hat that was pulled low over her eyes after the fashion of those who live much in the open. The man removed his hat and stood before her.

"Miss Warren?" he inquired. The girl nodded and waited for him to state his purpose.

"What are the chances of my riding for the Three Bar?" he asked.

"We're full-handed," said the girl. "I'm sorry."

"You'll be breaking out the remuda right soon now," he suggested. "I'm real handy round a breaking corral."

"They're all handy at that," she said. Then she noted the two horses before the bunk house and frowned. Her eyes searched the stranger's face and found no fault with it; she liked his level gaze. But she wondered what manner of man this was who had so aimlessly wandered alone for a year and avoided all other men.

"Since you've finally decided to work, how does it happen that you choose the Three Bar?" she asked, then flushed under his eyes as she remembered that so many men had wished to ride for her brand more than for another, their reasons in each case the same.

Chairman Didn't Quite Get Idea of Lecture

Being a Scot, and therefore a sentimentalist, I have always had an appreciative eye for good-looking women.

As a consequence of many wanderings I thought I could give a lecture about the ladies of many lands. I gathered a lot of pretty photographs—ladies walking in Hyde park, dusky maidens dancing in the South Sea islands, and that kind of thing—and wove a cheery lecture. "Sovereign Woman: Being the Impression of a Man in Thirty-eight Countries." It went well.

I delivered it in a Surrey residential town. My chairman, who had entertained me ardently at dinner, said the customary things a chairman is expected to say—information culled from "Who's Who"—and concluded by remarking, "Now I will call upon our lecturer to give you his experiences with 38 women in different countries!" The audience roared. I blushed. The chairman inquired in a loud whisper, "Have I said anything wrong?"—Sir John Foster Fraser in London Graphic.

How many people you know end their colds with Bayer Aspirin! And how often you've heard of its prompt relief of sore throat or tonsilitis. No wonder millions take it for colds, neuralgia, rheumatism; and the aches and pains that go with them. The wonder is that anyone still worries through a winter without these tablets! They relieve quickly, yet have no effect whatever on the heart. Friends have told you Bayer Aspirin is marvelous; doctors have declared it harmless. Every druggist has it, with proven directions. Why not put it to the test?

BAYER ASPIRIN

His Range of Vision Affected by Silver

A parable taken from a Jewish folk-play runs as follows:

"One day a certain old rich man, of a miserly disposition, visited a rabbi who took the rich man by the hand and led him to a window. 'Look out there,' he said. And the rich man looked out into the street.

"'What do you see?' asked the rabbi.

"'I see men, and women, and little children,' answered the rich man.

"Again the rabbi took him by the hand, and this time led him to a mirror. 'What do you see now?'

"'Now I see myself,' the rich man replied.

"Then the rabbi said: 'Behold—in the window there is glass, and in the mirror there is glass. But the glass of the mirror is covered with a little silver, and no sooner is the silver added than you cease to see others but see only yourself.'"

For the Baby

To protect the baby from diaper rash, diapers should always be washed in a solution of 20 Mule Team Borax. Borax neutralizes the acids, and removes all traces of soap which may irritate the baby's tender skin.—Adv.

New Fire Extinguisher

Two Ohio chemists were as much mystified as anybody recently when they discovered that solutions containing salts of alkali metals, such as potassium, can put out a fire three times as rapidly as standard soda acid types of extinguishers. Their apparatus, says Popular Science Monthly, puts out a blaze in 12 seconds. The best previous record was from 35 to 45 seconds.

Living River Dredge

The hippopotamus tears up and eats the great plants and weeds that grow in rivers, thus acting as one of nature's great dredges.

Unique Flag

A flag made up of stars and stripes owned by Mrs. Robert D. Rose, of Portland, Maine, is unusual in that the stars are arranged on the blue field so as to form the letters F-R-E-E. The word is composed of 35 stars, while the 36 is larger and placed below. This flag was carried by George Damry in a parade of school children on the Fourth of July, 1865.

LEONARD EAR OIL

Improves Hearing, Relieves Head Noises

Nine out of ten cases of DEAFNESS and HEAD NOISES are caused by catarrhal mucus (matter) in the Eustachian Tubes, which connects the nose and the ears. Leonard Ear Oil removes the MUCUS, OPENS UP THE TUBE and THE OTHER AIR PASSAGES OF THE HEAD, and the result is improved Hearing and relief from Head Noises. It is not put in the ears, but is "INSERTED IN THE NOSTRILS" and "RUBBED in BACK OF THE EARS" and special instructions by a noted Ear Specialist in each package for different kinds of Deafness and Head Noises tell you exactly how to take care of your own case. Leonard Ear Oil is not an experiment but has had a very large and constantly growing sale since 1907, and every year it has relieved thousands of people of their Ear Troubles. No matter how long you have been deaf, nor how deaf you are, or what caused your deafness, or how many things you have already tried which have failed to relieve you, Leonard Ear Oil has relieved many such cases as your own. Why not you? The price is $1.25. Leonard Ear Oil is for sale at Druggists, or direct postpaid upon receipt of price.

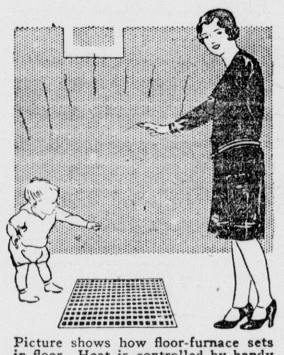
Good heating and fuel economy

come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed



Picture shows how floor-furnace sets in floor. Heat is controlled by handy valve.

You know how homes differ in their size and the type of building materials used. There is 10% less heat loss through plaster and board walls as through brick walls. And there is 25% less heat loss through insulated walls. These are some of the facts our staff considers before recommending a heating system. For after all, a furnace must keep your home warm no matter how your home is built.

Only trained engineers can weigh such facts and fit the proper heating equipment to each home.

There is no obligation if you have one of our men look over your home. The facts he finds will be taken back for careful consideration by our staff. Then you'll know the recommendations they make will be good. As we will always be in business we can only afford to recommend good gas heating equipment to our customers. And that is one reason why all our recommendations are carefully made. Another reason is, this company knows by years of carefully kept records, that good heating and fuel economy come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed.

A postcard or phone call will bring a heating expert to your home.

SUNSHINE SCHOOL GIVEN BY UNKNOWN

HAYWARD WILL HAVE HEALTH SCHOOL FOR 50 CHILDREN IN NEAR FUTURE

Success of Nutrition Class of the Street Grammar School Basis of New Venture.

A Sunshine School with capacity for about fifty children has been presented to Hayward by donor whose name is withheld for the present. The site will be on the sidehill near the Bret Harte school. Bids for construction were opened yesterday. A dozen contractors submitted figures, and their bids and deposit checks were retained for a few days until the Sunshine School building directors can select the best offer. E. P. Whitman is architect.

Equipment for the new school has been lent (to the value of $1500) by the Alameda County Tuberculosis association, which has exhibited friendly interest in the project from the first. The site is given by the grammar school trustees; the Hayward schools will provide two instructors, a parttime nurse, and upkeep of the school.

Authority over the school will be held by the Hayward Health Center and the grammar school board.

The building will be one story high, and will contain 12 rooms. There will be special offices for medical examiners; a dining room; a kitchen, rest rooms, classrooms, sun porches.

The school is established for children habitually undernourished. They will pursue their regular studies, just as in other schools. The Sunshine building is an outgrowth of the nutrition class of the B street grammar school, organized in October, 1926, as a part of the school system, and supervised by the Hayward Health Center under the direction of Mrs. Flavia Prentiss. It has been helped financially by the Lion's club of Hayward. The class has been very successful, not only in health, but in study.

Of 65 pupils, over a period of two years, all but 5 improved in health and scholastic work. Three received no help from their homes; a fourth was a very bright child who always did excellent work so that study improvement was not expected, and a fifth was sub-normal.

The new school will be on the order of Del Valle, that wonderful preventorium near Livermore, which has brought health to so many children.

Dr. Ann Martin will have charge of the medical work in the Sunshine School; Mrs. Katherine R. Borneman will outline the subjects to be taught. Maryetta Holman will direct the lectures given to the mothers of the pupils on health education in the home. Mrs. Leonore A. Ure of the domestic science department of Union High school will use the splendidly equipped kitchen to demonstrate to advanced classes institutional cooking and family budgeting.

FRESHMAN CLASS LARGE AS SCHOOL 'OF 4 YEARS AGO

The entry of five new Freshman at W. U. H. S. brings the enrollment of the class to 155, which is almost as many as the whole school enrollment four years ago. In other words, the school has multiplied something like four times, acording to E. B. Hodges, the principal.

DONOVAN BRINGS HOME NEW PET OF VACATION JAUNT

George Donovan returned from his vacation with a new pet; a shearwater, which it seems is a kind of a bird that looks partly like a gull and partly a duck. The bird had been injured somehow, and Mr. Donovan came on some children at Seabright, who were attempting to drown it. Playing good Samaritan, Mr. Donovan brought the animal back to Niles. Now his greatest problem is what to feed it. So far, the only thing he has discovered is raw meat; but he is sure there should be some kind of fish, if only for variety. Just what fish, though, is beyond his knowledge of natural history.

P. T. A. DISCUSSES VARIETY OF PLANS AT NILES MEETING

One of the items of interest to be discussed at the next meeting of the Niles Parent-Teachers' Association to be held at the Grammar school at 2:30 o'clock, October 9, will be the purchase of a motion picture machine for the school. At a meeting of the board of directors held Tuesday afternoon this matter was brought up and it was felt that the organization would wish to put aside a certain fund this year to go toward the purchase of a machine.

A special out-of-town speaker will be present also and an interesting program is assured. One of the projects to be especially stressed by this organization this year will be the membership campaign. The Niles group is eligible for two prizes offered by the district council and an effort is to be made to enlist the membership of the fathers as well as the mothers.

Plans are being made for a card party to be given on the evening of October 26. Committees will be appointed at next Tuesday's meeting.

Announcement was made of the annual party to be given by the Council of the Sixteenth district, to be held at the Contra Costa school on November 13. Schools are asked to put up posters advertising this event and a prize is offered for the best poster.

The next district council meeting will be held at the Centerville Grammar school on October 18, lasting from 10:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. Each lady takes her own lunch and the hostess school serves tea and coffee. Mrs. Harvey Braun, president of the Niles association, urges as many mothers as can do so to attend this meeting.

On the motion of Mrs. E. Plum the subscriptions to the Child Welfare and the Parent-Teachers' Association magazine are to be renewed for the president of the association and the principal. It was also decided to continue the custom of filling the penny box for Founders' Day.

As next Tuesday's session will be the first real business meeting of the year there are a number of matters of interest to be brought up. Each parent who has a child in the Niles Grammar school is urged to be present and to take part in this year's program which is planned for the welfare of the children of the community.

battleship, gives the impression of decks stripped for action. Huge stoves, an electric mixer, and large-scale household equipment are commonplace needs.

Yet never for a moment is it forgotten that this machinery has but one purpose; the physical well being of the children. Nor is this the chief preoccupation. The religion, morals and manners of the children are carefully directed. An atmosphere of kindness pervades the place. The children share with each other as a matter of course, and the older girls keep an eye on the younger. Maxine broke her leg a few weeks ago, and is just getting around again. Her crutches slipped; immediately there was an older girl there who picked her up, and, supporting her under the arms, helped her to a chair.

A tour of the class-room disclosed little vignettes of the life of the children. Sister Marcolina opened one door, and we came face-to-face with a blushing culprit who had been stood in the corner. In another room, a child's bracelet lay on the desk; easy to guess that it had been confiscated.

The fifth and sixth grades sang in unison as an attention to a visitor. The songs were well-timed, and the voices sweet and true. In the second grade, all was excitement. They were preparing a suprise for the Mother Superior's Feast Day tomorrow. When Sister Marcolina asked them to recite their piece, there was hesitation, until she assured them that she wouldn't tell or spoil the plan.

When classes let out, the children showed a restrained exuberance. There was no doubting the enjoyment on each face as they munched the afternoon luncheons, and began to play. House is a favorite, and elaborate game. The children have packing cases from which they actually construct houses, and lay out grounds.

The school also has a well-equipped infirmary with a Sister in charge. One little girl was ill wih rheumatism. She lay dozing, but when Sister Marcoline entered the room, her eyes, large and beseaching, looked at the Sister confidently, as though sure of aid, while she murmured with a child's surprise:

"It hurts."

The Sister bent over the bed, all compassion, while she soothed the little one back to sleep. A moment later, and she was rebuking gently, but firmly, a group of children who came upstairs too noisily.

We stood in one of the large dormitories, of which there are four, each accomodating sixty children. Rows of little white beds stretched to the windows. Each child has a little bureau for its possessions, with some holy pictures on it. In the background, a gentle Madonna smiled over the room.

"That bed doesn't belong there," said Sister Marcolina, "but times are so hard we have to make room for more than our capacity."

A woman was there that day to implore refuge for her two girls. Her husband had deserted her, after going with her to see the place where his children would be cared for. The woman was supposed to wait for an answer to her petition, but in her desperation she came up to the school, and with tears, threw herself on the Sister's mercy. There followed a brief consultation, and the Sister returned with the assurance that the children might come.

"Yes," she said, after the woman had gone, "we really haven't the place. But we don't dare turn cases like that away. People come to us only as a last refuge, and if we would keep them from desperation, we must not fail them.
